

Anyone who is too lazy to learn Morse code cannot perform basic HF radio-telegraphy communication, the most simple and reliable form of radio emission, proven for decades of normal and emergency civilian and military contacts. Telecommunication operator licensing should be based upon performance ability, not lazyness and lack of personal capabilities.